

Transfer FAQ's – Amid the COVID-19 Pandemic

Getting excited and maybe a little anxious about transferring to your four-year college or university without being able to visit the campus and meet people?

Have questions about whether you should choose a P+ grade or a letter grade for your spring courses?

YOU ARE NOT ALONE!

The key to making the right transfer decision is to ask questions and use available resources to inform those decisions. This FAQ provides general transfer information, questions to consider prior to transfer, and direct links to colleges and universities providing information on transfer amid the COVID-19 pandemic.

When should I send my community college or RBC transcript? And how?

Transcripts should be sent with your initial transfer application to your four-year institution. A final transcript must also be sent to the 4-year college or university upon completion of your academic program or upon posting of final grades for courses you intend to transfer.

To send your transcript to your four-year college or university, find your transcript request process for your community college or RBC by going to its website and searching “transcripts” or “transcript request.” Most colleges have steps for submitting an electronic request for transcripts, if not an email is provided. If you are sending your final transcript, make sure to indicate on the request you want the transcript sent after final grades are posted and your degree completion is confirmed. For initial applications, you should select to have the transcript sent at the time of application. Reach out to your college’s Admissions & Records office for additional help.

What questions should I ask?

Questions to help determine if you should request letter grades (ABCD) or pass grades (P+/P-) for spring 2020 courses.

P+ indicates that you have earned a grade of C or better in the course. A P- represents a grade of D which does not transfer nor apply to degree requirements.

- Will my class transfer and apply to my degree requirements if a grade of P+ is earned in spring 2020?
- Will a grade of P+ or P- be used when calculating my GPA for admissions?
- How will a grade of P+ impact me if I am applying to a competitive major?
- How will a grade of P+ impact me if my major requires a grade of B or higher in a course?
- How will a course with a P grade impact my GAA application? What if the GAA requires a letter grade higher than a C on any course?
- If I earn a grade of P+ on a course that is a pre-requisite course for a course in my major, will I still be able to enroll in that course?
- Do “P” grades impact my eligibility for the Transfer Grant?

Questions to help keep you on track for transferring this fall.

- Can I still submit an application for admission to a 4-year college or university?
- When will I know if I am accepted at the 4-year college or university?
- How will I register for my fall classes at the 4-year college or university?
- Is my 4-year orientation cancelled and if so, what should I do?
- When will I know if I get housing at the 4-year college or university?
- Is it too late to apply for financial aid for the fall term?
- What if my financial status has changed significantly, can I apply for more aid? If so, how?
- What if I cannot pay my admissions deposit when it is due?
- Can I request an unofficial evaluation of my transcript to see how credits will apply to my prospective major? If so, how?
